Tips and trends for homeowners, buyers and sellers

Some people view a front door as simply a utility—a way in and out. However, the entrance to your home can speak to both guests who come to visit and to your own creativity. Here are a few ways to make your door stand out.

Style The first thing you need to address is what style of door you want. Depending on what your home looks like and your own personal tastes, there are a range of options to choose. From a traditional door that you see on most houses as you drive around your neighborhood, to a modern look that makes the door really pop from the sidewalk or street, to a niche-style, like country cottage or beach bungalow, you must decide how the door will fit in with the rest of the home design.

Color While you can choose from a wide variety of colors, some fit in better with certain styles. For instance, a traditional door usually is a dark shade, like black, gray or navy, while a modern door can be as bold as lime green, orange or magenta.

Bells and whistles Consider some less-thought-about features of your doorway. Are you going to have a door knocker? A mail slot? Do you want knobs or handles? You even need to think about what font you want your street number to be written in, if you have it posted on the front of your home. For all of these features, you then need to think about what materials they'll be constructed from. Brass, gold or silver can really accentuate your door and make these extra elements shine.

Finishing touches Complete your entryway with a few extra personal touches, like a tasteful doormat or bench/seating area on your porch or stoop. They may not be the most important features while you're planning your front door design, but these accessories can certainly tie all design elements together and create the perfect entryway experience.
